CASE WESTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY DEPARTMENT OF COGNITIVE SCIENCE

SPRING 2010

Congratulations, 2010 Graduates!

Baccalaureate in Cognitive Science

This spring, 21 cogsci majors received their degrees: Joseph Amick, Katelyn Begany, Eric Brandt, Rachel Cooper, Yardená Daon, Steven Dee, Richard Eaton, Matthew Elliott, Laura Germann, Kabir Gulati, Huston Hoburg, Alexander Hoover, Nicholas Korsantia, Emily Lipham, Dan Ying Liu, Margaret Min, Megan Norr, Alison O'Brien, Maxwell Sills, Matthew Webster and Mallory Zehe.

Katelyn Begany received the 2010 Award for Outstanding Academic Achievement in Cognitive Science.

Master's in Cognitive Linguistics

Yardená Daon, Patricia Lichtenstein and Samantha Schartman are the first graduates of our MA program in cognitive linguistics.

Alumni Updates

Christine Cowne (2008) is completing her master's degree from the Graduate School of Professional Psychology at the University of Denver and is currently serving as an intern at the Denver Women's Correctional Facility.

Steven Dee (2010) will be moving to San Francisco and working for Google.

Patricia Lichtenstein (MA 2010) will be attending a three-week summer school offered by Stephen Wolfram's research laboratory to explore grammar and other linguistic phenomena.

Emily Lipham (2010) is moving with her fiancée to North Carolina to attend the graduate program in speech pathology at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Emily has also been elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Stephen Skentzos (2008) works in the Department of Endocrinology at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, MA, writing natural language processing software to automatically extract information from the free text in doctors' notes about patient visits.

As the Department of Cognitive Science enters its fourth year, we are eager to express our gratitude to our alumni, who have helped the Cogsci initiative flourish at Case Western Reserve University.
